A few words from our customers...

...and about our customers.

Revised January 2017
We'd like to thank all our customers for their support in making the Neptune Series a success and welcoming us into each of your marinas. As you read about each of our customers and their marinas, you will see how each location has charm to it. Whether it be a little or a lot, each marina gives something unique to its customers. Some of the locations have a storied history behind them, while others are currently in development waiting to be the next modern-day marina.

What all the marinas and the people that run them have in common is their dedication to their customers. From retrieving and prepping a customer’s boat for the day on the water to a clubhouse where customers can sit back and relax, these marinas strive to give their customers the ultimate boating experience.

We’re honored to be part of that experience.

"Comparing business climates from around the Midwest to Indiana, the Hoosier advantage is clear."

Vice President Mike Pence said

“our low taxes, affordable costs of doing business & skilled Hoosier workforce are key factors in helping companies grow.”

From early talks of a move in 2014, to a ribbon cutting at the newly-renovated East Chicago facility, all the way to present day as supporters of Pence’s own office relocation to the West Wing, Hoist has built a strong relationship with the Vice President. We foresee a continued growth in American-made products with leaders like Pence and President Donald Trump in office.

Once Hoist grew confident in the choice to move over the state border, executive leaders were tasked with finding a facility large enough to house Hoist’s growing number of product orders. CEO Marty Flaska made the decision to renovate a 100-year old building formerly occupied by Blaw-Knox Casting and Machinery. The 530,000 sq ft facility sat mostly vacant for over 10 years, but saw production of machinery for the booming steel mill industry during its prime. Governor Pence said to Flaska, “By your company’s decision, you are bringing one of the largest big truck, material handling, manufacturing plants in North America right here, to East Chicago, and we couldn’t be more grateful.”

A little less than a year ago, Hoist Liftruck left the Land of Lincoln and relocated its manufacturing headquarters just over the state border to East Chicago, Indiana with the hopes of a better labor force, savings in worker’s compensation, and lower taxes. As an Indiana native, state border to East Chicago, Indiana with the hopes of a better labor force, savings in worker’s compensation, and lower taxes.

"We've seen a number of companies that have moved not only from Illinois but from other states to come to the Hoosier state because of our low taxes, because of our great workforce.”

Then-Governor of Indiana, Vice President Mike Pence aided Hoist in their transition to the Hoosier State. As an Indiana native, Pence recognized the potential of Northwest Indiana’s labor force, one of the many incentives for Hoist’s relocation. Pence noted, “We’ve seen a number of companies that have moved not only from Illinois but from other states to come to the Hoosier state because of our low taxes, because of our great workforce.”

Thoughts on the Neptune Series

“Marty [Flaska] and Hoist have gone above and beyond with their service. They understand that the name of the game is rack ‘em and stack ‘em, and downtime is a killer for a marina. They are right on spot, shipping parts and keeping the truck running, no questions asked and dealing with the details later. I’ve dealt with [a competitor] who needed to know every little detail before any action was taken, if at all, and we can’t have that. We’ve had the Neptune for about a year and I compare it to the Ferrari. It is better than anything on the market and time will tell if it continues to be the best, but I’m very confident that it will.” - Mike Wiatrsky

“We’ll run over 100 boats in and out of the water and racks in a single day and the Neptune meets the demands we require from it. It’s a workhorse and our main forklift in operation.” - Dan Wigon

“Both the visibility is fantastic, especially out the rear. It’s a very comfortable and smooth ride, which is great for us since we move so many boats everyday. The quickness of the hydraulics is nice and the tall overhead guard let’s us stand up and look down when we’re lowering boats in the water.” - Gasparilla Forklift Operators.

We also have two overhead monorail hoists capable of launching and recovering 16,000 pound boats on to and off of trailers.

“I purchased my first Neptune in 2007. We are a small family owned marina and for a number of years operated with only one machine. Reliability and keeping my marina operating are my two most important factors when considering a vendor. Hoist has exceeded my expectations in both quality and support. Therefore, as my business grew, I purchased my second Neptune last year.”

Grove Harbour Marina
Miami, Florida

M250 Neptune Series Delivered June 2006
M400 Neptune Series Delivered June 2014
(2) M300 Neptune Series On Rent from Hoistlift of Florida

Marina Overview:
Grove Key Marina is a full service marina, which includes interior and exterior storage, fuel (gas and diesel), boat haul-out and service/maintenance. Boats can be stored on cradles inside one of the marina’s two hangars or outside on any of its 320 hi and dry rack spaces. Grove Key Marina is one of the busiest marinas in Miami area with a distinguished list of clientele and a one-and-a-half-year waiting list.

Aviation History and a Silent Winch
Though Grove Key Marina took delivery of a Neptune Series marina forklift from Hoist Liftruck in June 2006, the history of the property the marina sits on and Hoist Liftruck go back more than 75 years.

Dinner Key, on Biscayne Bay, in Coconut Grove, Florida served as a U.S. Naval Air base until the end of World War I. Non-scheduled, commercial airplanes used the facility until it was destroyed by the 1926 Miami Hurricane.

In 1930, Pan American Airways (Pan Am) selected the former naval air base for its inter-American flights after acquiring New York-Rio- Buenos Aires Airline, which flew flying boats between Miami and Buenos Aires. Between 1931 and 1938, four hangars were constructed to house and service Pan Am’s fleet of Clipper seaplanes, as well as its new terminal building.

The terminal building was more than a place for departing and arriving travelers, providing an international postal office, public health services, customs and immigration and ticket counters. The building also attracted thousands of visitors with its three-and-a-half-ton revolving globe that was located in the lobby, as well as its prominent second floor amenities.

“Travelers and guests could view takeoffs and landings from the terminal building’s second floor restaurant and cocktail lounge,” explains Paul Turcotte, General Manager of Grove Key Marina. “Many of the world’s wealthiest people and famous stars sat in that lounge and restroom.”

During World War II, Dinner Key again served as a base for the U.S. Navy, but still continued to serve its international passengers. As some time passed and airfields started to appear in Latin America, the need for seaplanes decreased. Pan Am’s final flight to Dinner Key was on August 9, 1945.

Today, the former terminal building is now Miami City Hall, which was converted in 1954. Grove Key Marina sits on a significant portion of the property and it continues to use two of the original four Pan Am hangars as boat storage and service areas. The basin where tracks used to tow the Clipper seaplanes in and out of the water is now used by Grove Key Marina to launch and retrieve boats with its marina forklifts.

“The tracks are still visible in the water and show no signs of rust after all these years,” states Turcotte. “In fact, the original winch system that operated the tracks and the shed that housed it is still here as well.”

The winch used back in the 1920s was manufactured by Brooklyn, New York based Silent Hoist & Crane, the historic company that is now Hoist Liftruck.

Thoughts on the Neptune Series
Steve Kinderman, COO

“Aquamarina Partners and Hoist have been working together for 8 years. Throughout that time, they have purchased three machines from Hoist. Hoist has worked closely to create special specifications on each machine to meet our facility requirements. Hi-Lift specifically, required a 35,000 lb. capacity machine to lift their larger boats and still fit in the same footprint as our old short wheelbase competitor’s machine. At each facility uptime is imperative and Hoist has met the significant demands through exceptional parts support and on-time service support.”

Thoughts on the Neptune Series
- William Briggs - Owner
  “Hoist’s shortwheel base M350 is the only option on the market to fit in our narrow aisles and still handle our large boats. We are thrilled with the machine and the support that Hoist/HLFL has provided us. The quality/fit and finish is like no other machine we’ve ever seen.”
Thoughts on the Neptune Series - Jeremy Heckler - Marina Manager

“Our first Neptune arrived in 2006 and we purchased our second Neptune in 2012. Prior to Hoist we owned the competitor’s machine and it only made sense to own Hoist. Hoist has always supported us and we are confident we can rely on them.”

Thoughts on the Neptune Series - Mike Wisatsky - Owner

“Marty [Flaska] and Hoist have gone above and beyond with their service. They understand that the name of the game is rack ‘em and stack ‘em, and downtime is a killer for a marina. They are right on spot, shipping parts and keeping the truck running, no questions asked and dealing with the details later. I’ve dealt with [a competitor] who needed to know every little detail before any action was taken, if at all, and we can’t have that. We’ve had the Neptune for about a year and I compare it to the Ferrari. It is better than anything on the market and time will tell if it continues to be the best, but I’m very confident that it will.”

Thoughts on the Neptune Series - Richard Shoup - Marina Manager

“Upon delivery of our new M350 Neptune by Hoist, factory personal (Jim and Steven) were promptly on site for set up and full orientation. We are a family owned operation and greatly appreciate the knowledge, care, and speed in which Hoist was able to get us operating for a major holiday weekend. We have owned all the major players in the marine truck market and by far, Hoist is the simplest and ergonomically functioning machine on the market. So simple, my 16 and 14-year-old daughters can safely run it. We have over 350 carefree hours now. For what small items that needed to be addressed, service has been outstanding. Again, a thank you goes out to all the guys at Hoist of Florida... well done Hoist Liftruck!”
