Hoist Liftruck receives several P-Series liftruck orders Pneumatic liftruck line continues to grow and gain popularity in heavy industries

BEDFORD PARK, Illinois, June 17, 2008 – Hoist Liftruck customer base is growing by leaps and bounds with numerous P-Series liftrucks orders within the past few months. The P-Series liftruck has grown in interest over many diverse applications including but not limited to the steel, produce, and grain industries.

Amsco Steel will be using their P520@48 for moving and loading steel coils. Equipment Depot of Fort Worth, TX was the Hoist dealer who brought the sale to Hoist. Hoist prides itself on providing quality liftrucks to the steel industry. Amsco Steel is a steel service center located in Fort Worth, TX that distributes more than 70,000 tons of ready-for-the-line steel products each year. As a regional leader among steel service center, the steel is exactly processed, wrapped and delivered to customer's specifications.

Earthbound Farms, a produce grower in San Juan Bautista, CA purchased three P330's from Hoist's dealer, Toyota Materials Handling of Northern California. Earthbound Farm is an organic farm who primarily grows and packages lettuce and other greens. The three P330's will allow greater productivity in getting produce from Earthbound fields to local grocery stores by handling several pallets of produce at one time with its 3 pallet attachment manufactured by Hoist.

Adams Grain purchased a P360 to move, load, and unload containers of grain. Hoist dealer Toyota Materials Handling of Northern California, West Sacramento branch closed the sale. Adams Grain, for nearly 100 years has built its business around the cornerstones of innovation and service. Headquartered in Arbuckle, CA, the privately owned grain corporation began servicing the industry in the 1920's when its primary business was managing malt barley trade between Sacramento Valley farmers and San Francisco Bay area exporters.
